Sango Dadiso Conservation Area

Hunting Free Zone

Sango Dadiso Camp and Sango Expedition Camp are situated in the Dadiso Conservation Area which covers 200 km². This area was created to establish photo tourism on Sango in a credible and sustainable way.

Hybrid Conservation Concept

Sango Private Game Reserve is a hybrid approach to conservation. As in national parks around the world, wildlife management and sustainable utilization are mandatory. In 2025 we will reduce the wildlife management period at Sango to the months of June / July / August and the rest of the year the entire Sango Private Reserve (600 km² / 60,000ha) will be open exclusively for photographic tourism. Mixing of these different target groups will be strictly avoided and respected at all times.

Africa in a nutshell

The landscape in the Dadiso Conservancy is varied, offering mopane woodland, pans, savannah, the Savé River and a variety of iconic African wildlife. Given the hunted environment in the Save Valley, Dadiso is becoming a refuge and resting place for local wildlife.

Meet Kim Wolhuter

Kim Wolhuter comes from a long line of conservationists. He grew up in the Kruger National Park, South Africa, where his father was the head game ranger and his grandfather the very first game ranger of the park.

For the last 34 years Kim has been making wildlife documentaries for the BBC, National Geographic, Discovery Channel and Animal Planet. He has won numerous awards including several Emmy Awards. And has a handsome following on social media. Kim lives in Sango with his family.

“Through my films it is my eternal endeavour to be sure that we re-engage with our wild friends just as our ancestors did. We can’t afford anymore to distance ourselves from the wild allowing it to become alien to us. When this happens we lose respect, and eventually we don’t care! And that becomes a huge loss to humanity.”

Exklusive Baobab Safari

Have you ever picnicked in a baobab tree and watched the animals at a waterhole from above? Then join us on our Baobab Safari and experience a unique blend of climbing and safari on a thousand-year-old baobab tree.

Don't worry, the tree won't be harmed and the portal ledges, known from mountain climbing, are perfectly safe.

Our Anti-Poaching Unit regularly uses these mobile platforms in their work and this is how the idea for the Baobab Safari came about.

On request, we set up the platform for our guests before the visit, instruct them in the simple technique and off they go. An unforgettable experience from a truly unique perspective.

Rhino Ear Notching

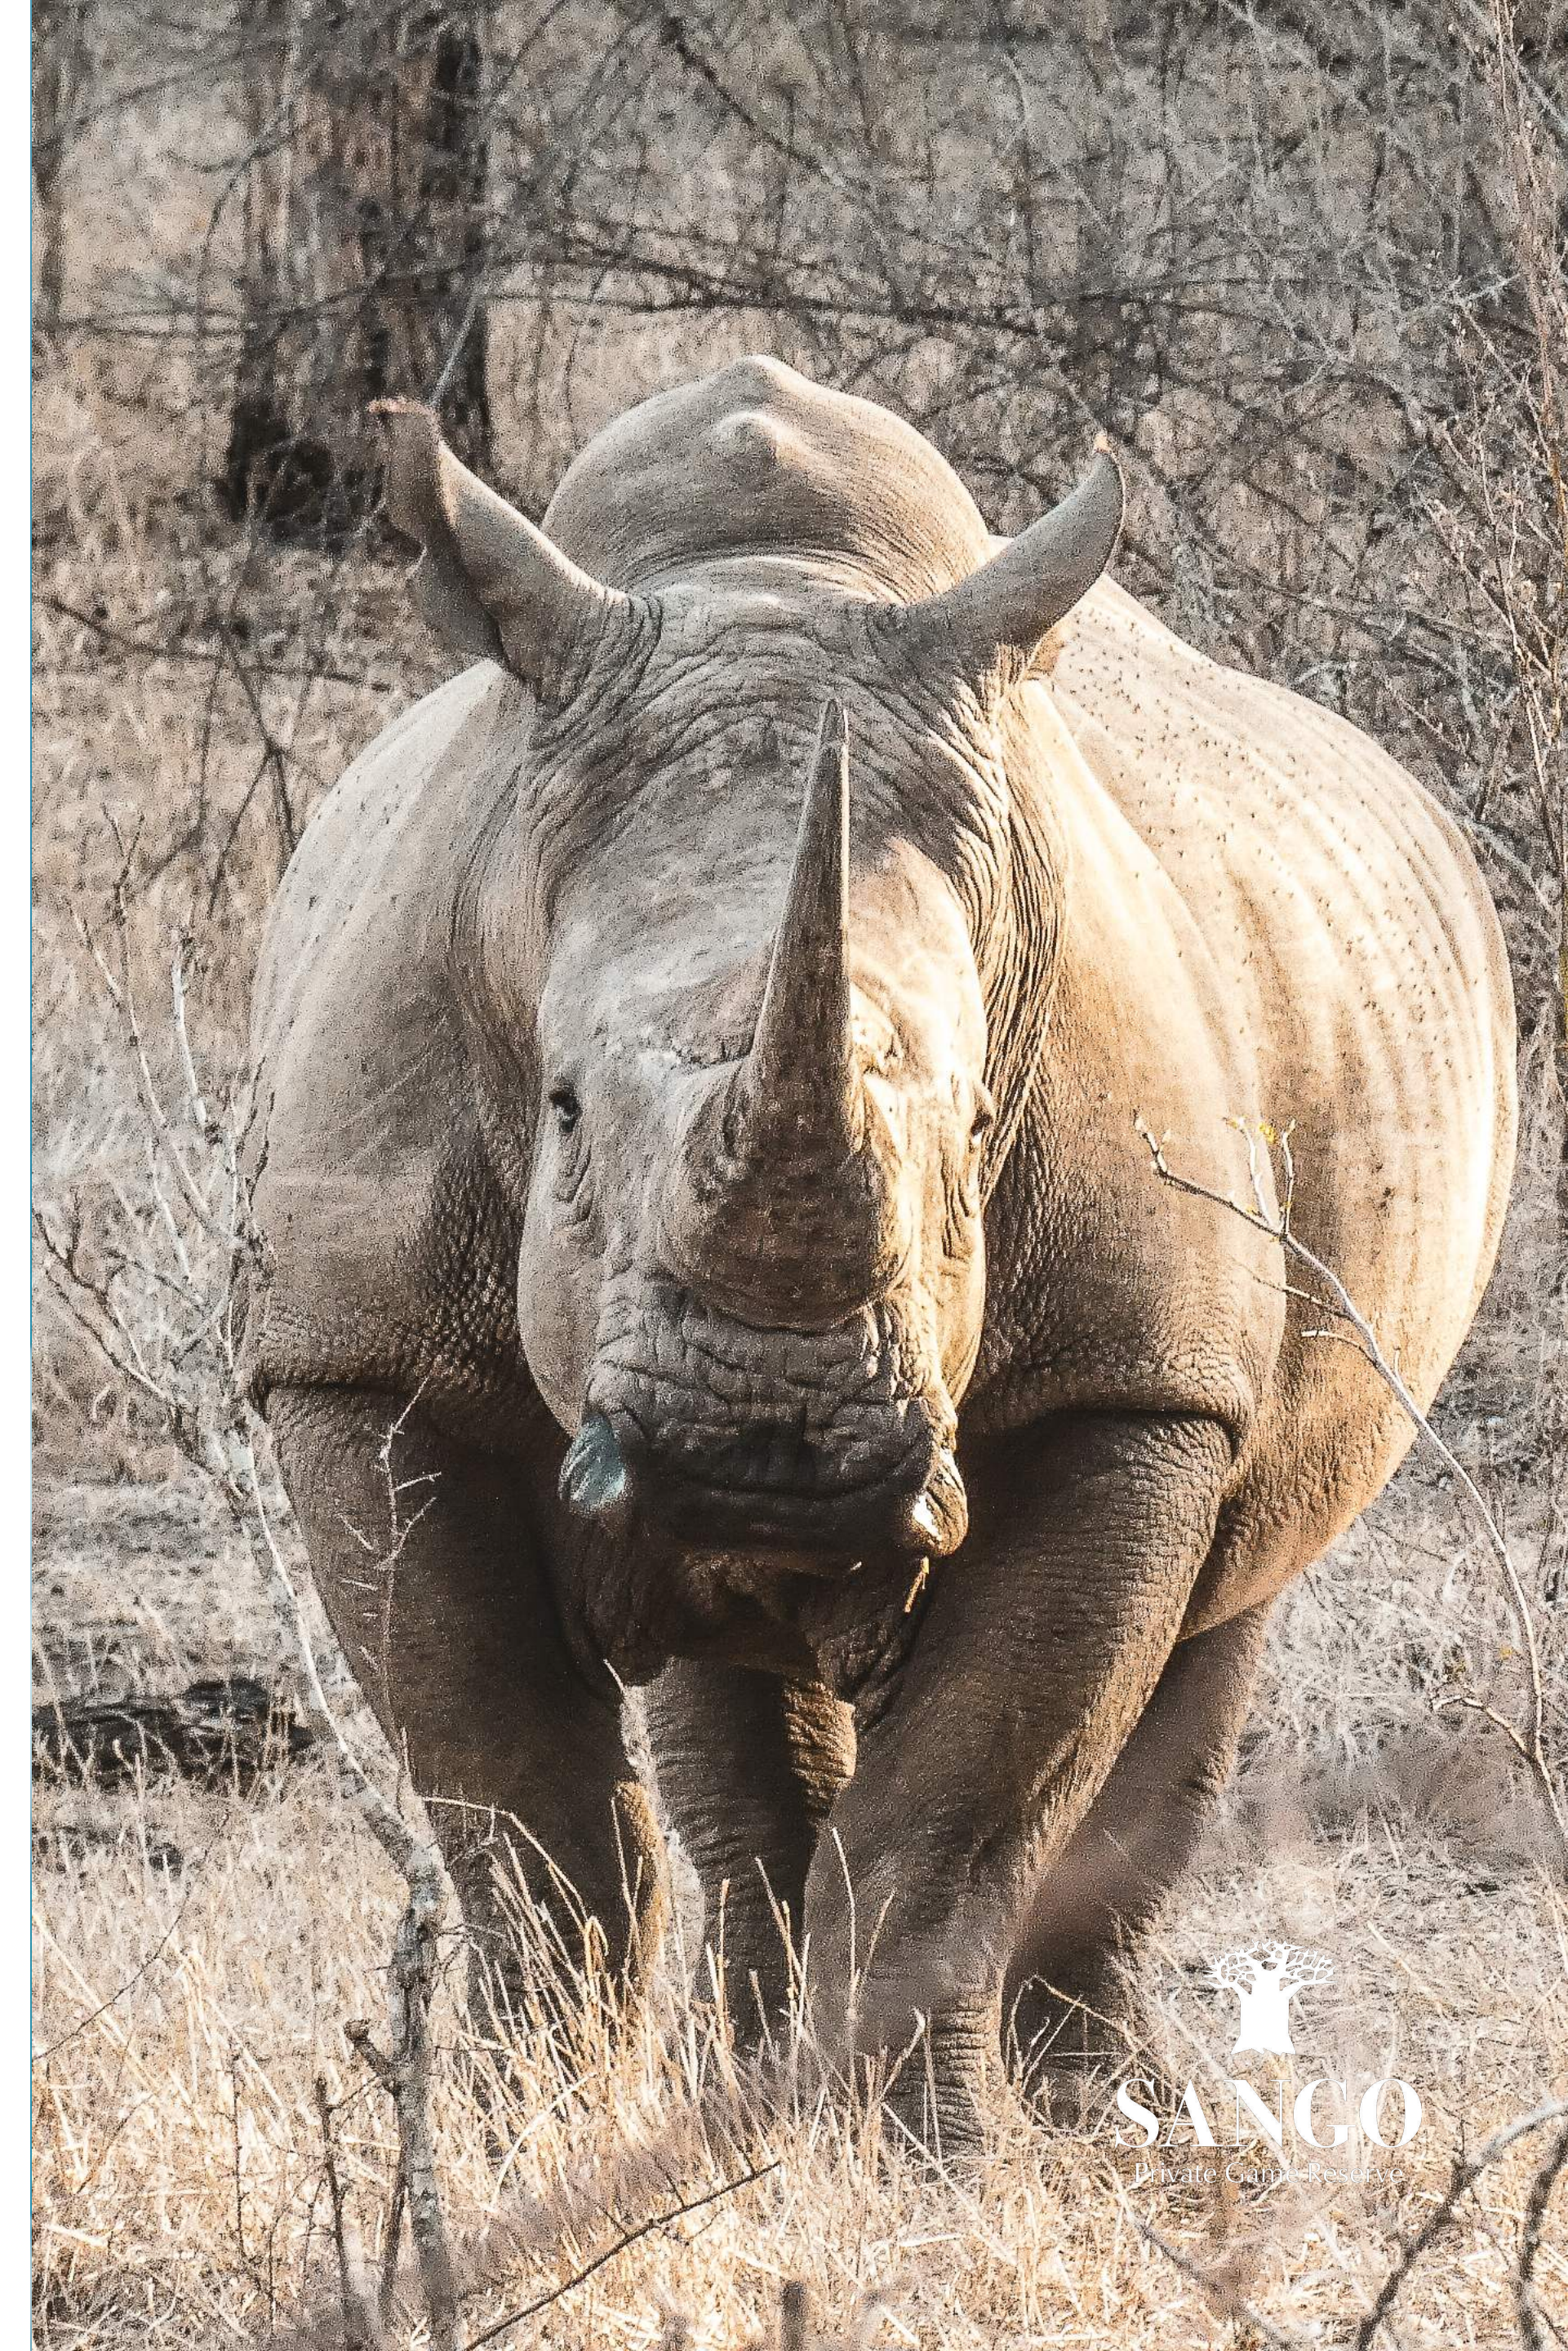

All visitors to Sango can take part in our annual ear notching for two weeks in August at no extra cost. During this time, Sango's young rhinos are tagged. This is a unique opportunity to experience conservation first hand and get up close to a wild rhino.

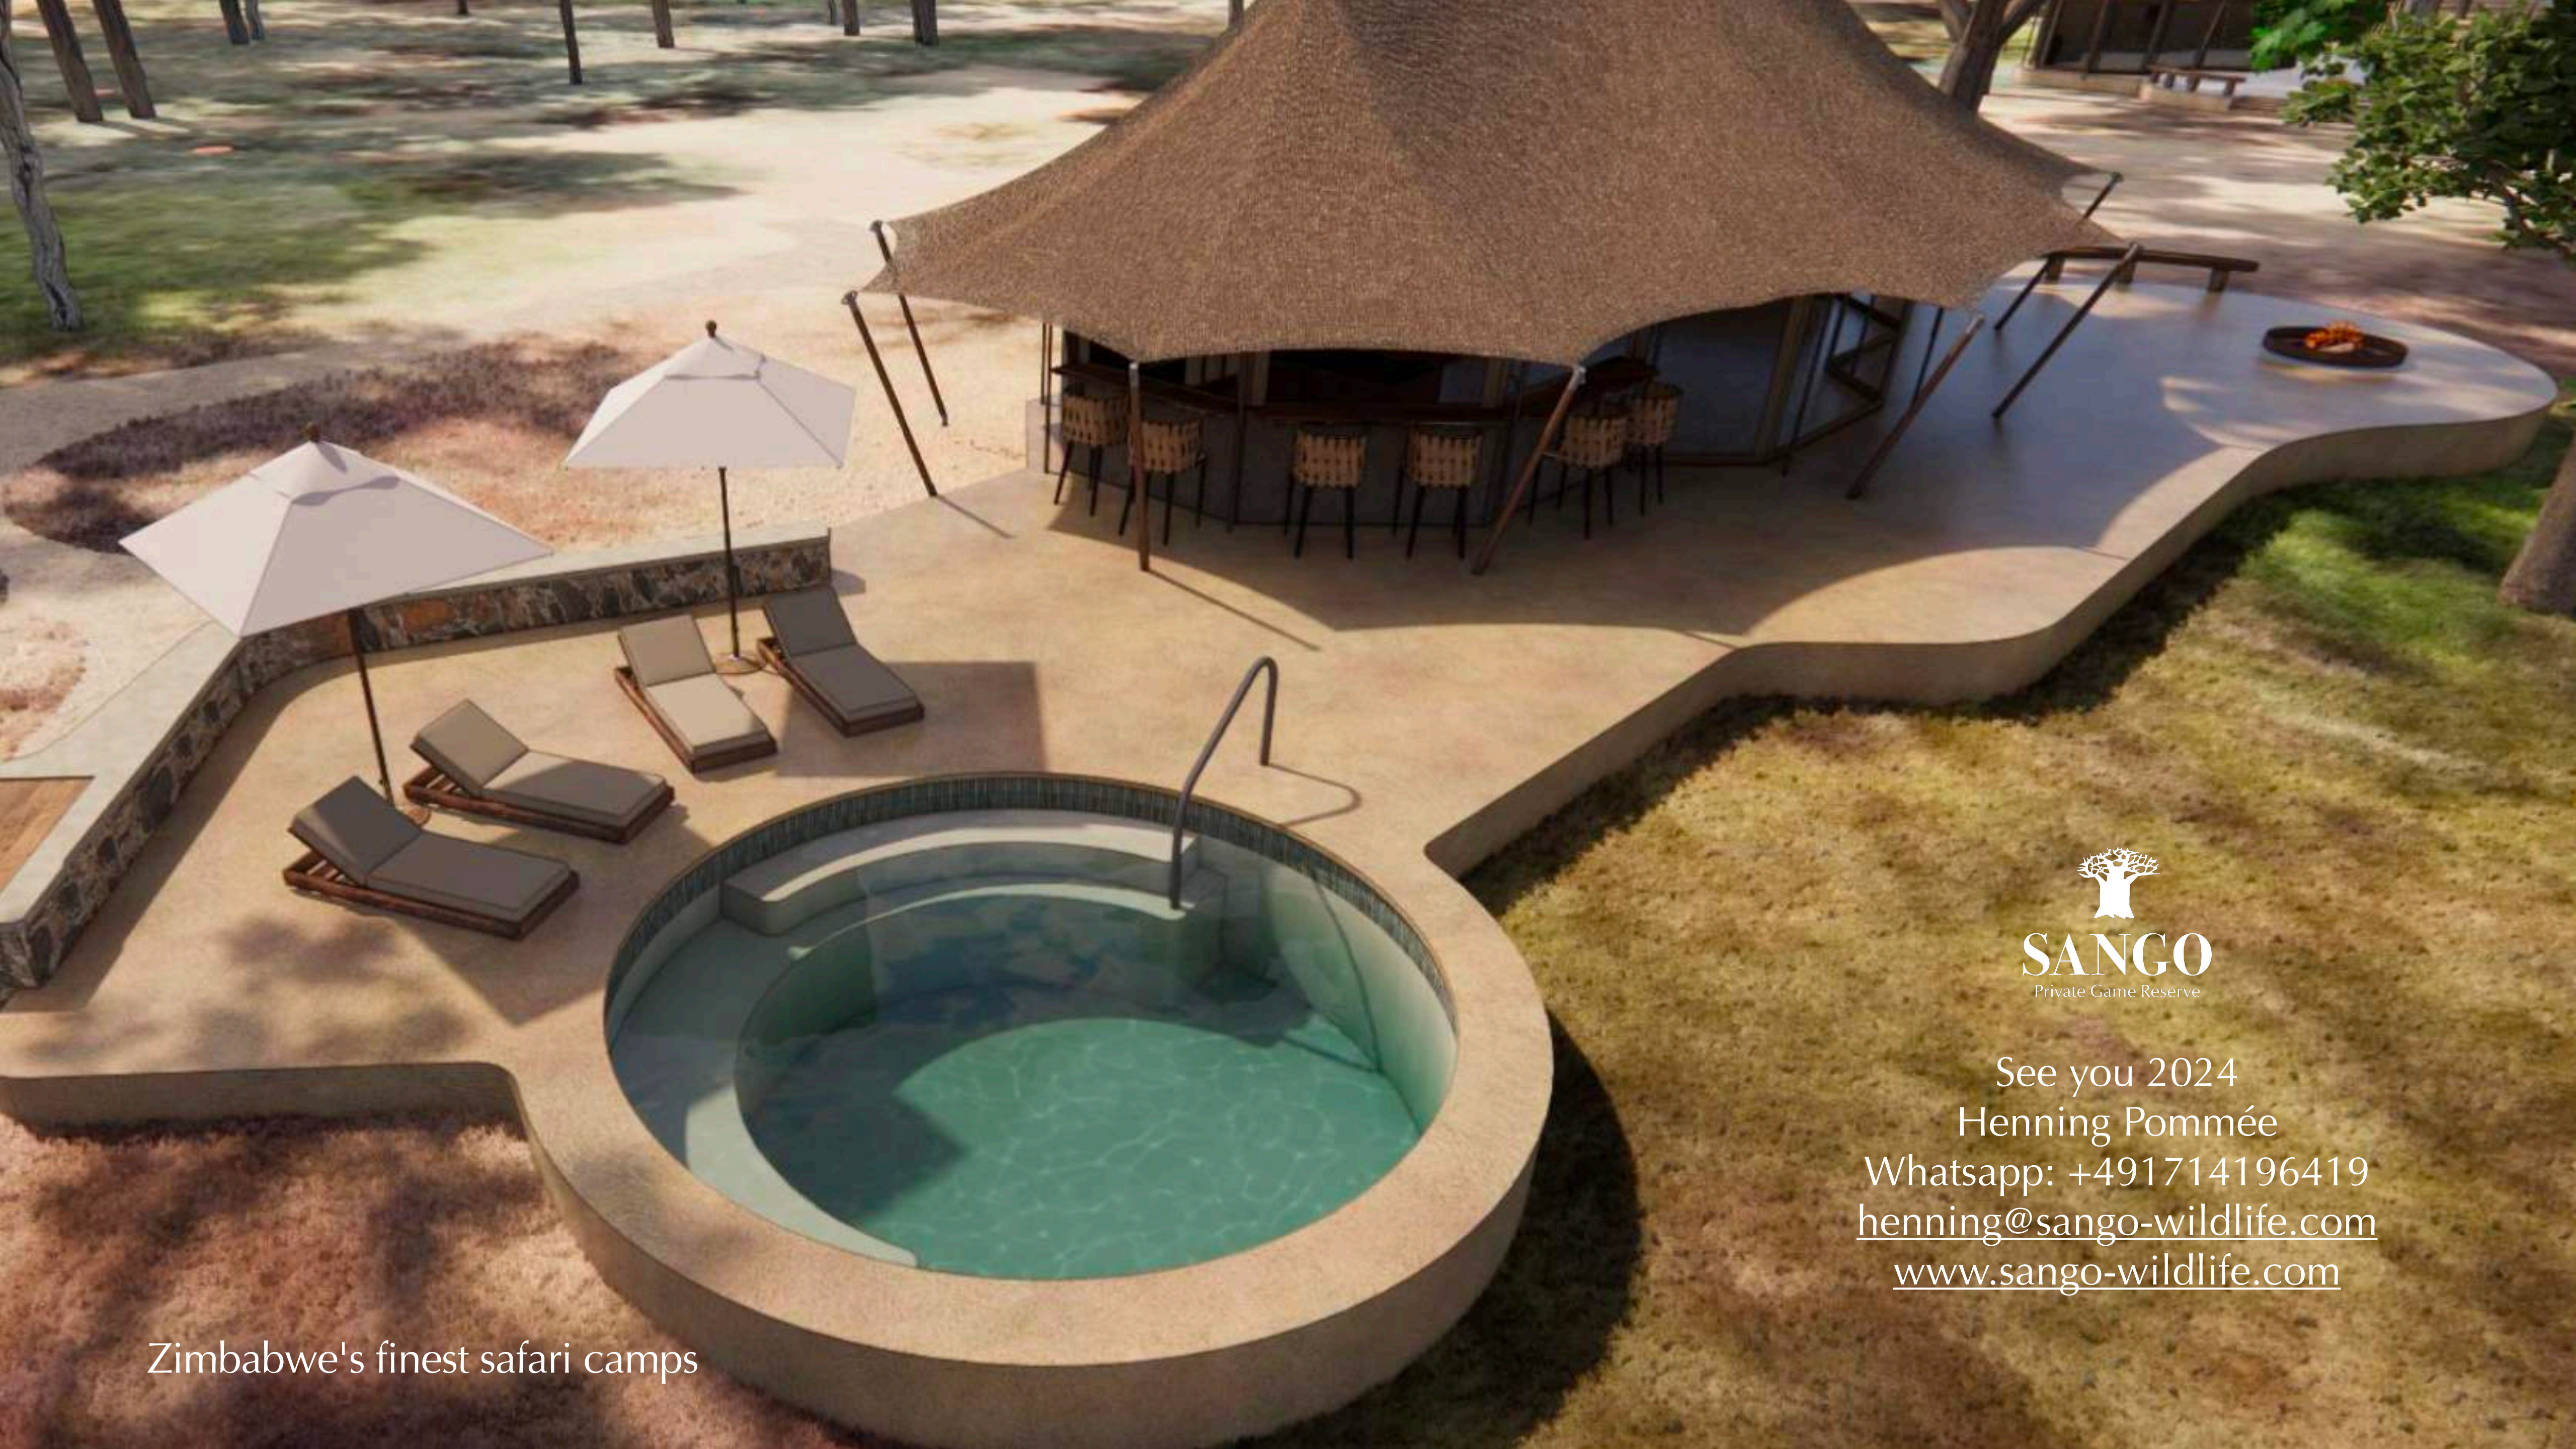

Optional: Join our team and check the vital signs of the unique unicorns as they are being tagged, or assist the vets with their work.

All the benefits of a regular booking still apply.
